trated. To cents. This is a subject of much interest at present, and Prof. Dolbear's exposition of it will be welcomed. The author elucidates the phenomena of electricity, magnatism and sound, as involved in the action of the telephone; de-scribes the workings of the speaking telephone, and gives directions for making one. The author is specially qualified to write on the subject, as he is the inventor of the telephone which he describes. His descriptions are plain, and are helped out by a dozen or more engrav-ings.-[Boston Journal.
