The Scientific American

stands without a peer-in point of literar excellence and circulation, among scientif publications. Every number is a treasury scientific information, an epitome of the newest, most interesting and most importan developments in the realms of Science ar Manufactures.

It is a faithful weekly chronicle of the la est inventions and patents and keeps its readers in constant touch with all facts relating to the industrial and scientific progress of the world. Every issue records the newest di coveries and improvements in Machiner Metallurgy, Engineering, Electricity, Cher istry. Agriculture, etc.

It is handsomely and appropriately illutrated and printed on good paper. 16 page Subscription $3.00 per year. $1.50 six month Every student, instructor or professor, i any branch of science, ought to read it, also Mechanics, Foremen, Workmen, Engi eers, Electricians, Chemists, Physicians an intelligent people in almost every trade an profession.

The Scientific American Supplemen

is a separate publication, also issued weekl but containing more extended and more exhaustive articles than the SCIENTIFIC AME ICAN, with which it is uniform in size an make up. While the SCIENTIFIC AMERICA notes only the salient points of the world scientific news, the Supplement gives long and more detailed descriptions, elaborating for the benefit of those who wish to stude closely the subject treated of in its pages. I articles are also more advanced and more technical than those published in the pare paper. The Scientific American Suppl MENT also contains authentic reports of the meetings of scientific societies all over t world, together with copious abstracts made from papers read before such societies. the same time it has a page of short not relating to the general scientific news, t gether with a column of selected formula The two papers combined form a comple weekly review of the world's advanceme in scientific discoveries.

Price of Supplement $5.00 a year, or, wi the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, $7.00 a year.

The Scientific American Building Editio

issued on the first of every month, contai about 36 large quarto pages of interesti information about Building and Archite ture. It is profusely illustrated with han some plates showing the most recent e amples of Architectural Construction. Pla and descriptions of new residences in ci and country are given in each issue, togeth with the estimated cost of same. This fee ure alone renders the publication of uniq value to Architects, Builders and Owners, account of the up-to-date and original ide it suggests. Illustrated articles on Seweras Piping, Lighting, Heating, Ventilating, I corating, etc., also find a place in its pag Subscription price $2.50 a year. Single cop
